USF St. Petersburg to Host Lecture on Salem Witch Trials

By Lisa Wharton
Crow's Nest Coordinator

Professor Priscilla Brewer will present a free lecture Monday, October 28 at 6:00 pm in the Campus Activities Center concerning the Salem witch trials. Entitled "Salem Possessed: The Witchcraft Hysteria of 1692," Professor Brewer will examine the history of the infamous Salem witch trials.

Presented by the St. Petersburg Lecture Series Committee in conjunction with Dr. Danny Jorgensen's class, "Magic, Witchcraft and Paganism in America," this lecture looks at the Salem witch trials as they approach their 300th anniversary. These trials spread fear and discord throughout colonial America and their effects are still being felt today.

Brewer, a professor in the Department of American Studies on USF Tampa campus, obtained her Ph.D. in American Civilization from Brown University in 1987. She has done extensive research on 19th century societies, publishing a book on the Shakers in 1986. She also teaches courses on New England and American colonial cultures.

Jorgensen's class has been studying the development of witchcraft and paganism from a historical perspective in preparation for an in-depth evaluation of its existence in the United States today. Earlier in the month, Diane Stein, an author and spiritual healer, presented a program to Jorgensen's class and members of the university community on the goddess religion.

All events sponsored by the St. Petersburg Lecture Series Committee are free and open to the university community and the general public.

Russian Delegation Visits USF

By Marty Tschiderer

A delegation from Kaluga, Russia, visited USF St. Petersburg last Monday as part of a fact-finding trip to learn more about the American way of life.

The visit is part of the "Friendship Cities" program initiated by Clearwater Mayor Rita Garvey to open up dialogue between cities and citizens of the world and the Bay area. Another goal is to establish cultural and business exchanges.

"They are here to promote person-to-person goodwill and to encourage business relationships," said Harry Schaleman, Jr., a Geography professor at the Bayboro campus.

Kaluga, the capital city of the Kaluga region, is located 100 miles southwest of Moscow on the Oka River.

Kaluga boasts over 20 institutions of higher education, including a major branch of the prestigious Academy of Science. This institute is a research and development center for aviation technology.

wood product factories, building materials, coal mining, turbine engines, heavy machinery, production tools, and agricultural processing.

Kaluga has recently established its own stock exchange and international customs department.

Schaleman, along with Dr. Sonya Helton (Education), provided a mini-tour of the university campus for the Russian delegation.

"They met with Dean Bridges first, and then we took them through the (Poynter) Library, the Computer Lab and over to Marine Science," Schaleman said.

The group was then treated to an "American style" lunch of hamburgers, hot dogs, french fries, brownies and apple pie.

After lunch, the delegation answered questions from Schaleman's geography class.

After the brief session, the delegation bid farewell to the university and proceeded to its next cultural destination—the Dali Museum.

Nine members of the Student Council for Exceptional Children (SCEC) attended a recent state convention in Jacksonville, FL on October 17-19.

It was a very valuable learning experience, according to SCEC president Laura Angelelli.

At the convention, a program was presented that allowed regular education and special education interns the chance to change places and gain valuable insights into each other's field.

"What a wonderful idea," Angelelli said.

Angelelli added that the conference was a chance to establish important contacts. She also wanted to thank Student Government for providing some of the funds "to make this event happen."
SPORT SHORTS

Cheer for our USF St. Petersburg Superstars on Saturday, November 2 at North Shore Park as they battle intrepid competitors from Florida Power, the St. Petersburg Times, GTE and a host of others.
