George McGovern, politician and historian, will speak Feb. 10-11 in Tampa and St. Petersburg at three free public lectures at the University of South Florida and Hillsborough Community College.

McGovern, who recently lost his bid for a fourth term in the U.S. Senate, will discuss "American Politics in Historical Perspective," a talk in which he is expected to indicate what future he sees for liberals like himself after the nation's apparent upsurge of conservatism.

McGovern's talks will be at noon on Tuesday Feb. 10 in the St. Petersburg Campus Auditorium, Building A. His Tampa USF Campus appearance will be at 8 PM Feb. 10 in the Business Administration Auditorium (BSM 1100). He will also speak in the Dale Mabry Campus Gym of Hillsborough Community College in Tampa at 1 PM Feb. 11.

His various appearances are sponsored by the USF history department, the Program for Emphasis in Human Services of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences (through the Board of Regents Quality Improvement Program funding), the St. Petersburg Campus Lecture Series Committee and HCC.

What would you do if, all of a sudden, your world collapsed around you and all that was familiar to you vanished? What if there were no escape? Emily Stilson has just suffered a stroke and this is her world of terror and frustration.

On Feb. 6 at 8 p.m., the curtain rises on PALISADES THEATRE'S production of Arthur Kopit's WINGS, featuring Rita Howell as Emily Stilson. The play runs through Feb. 21, Wednesdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. with 2 p.m. matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays at 169 Central Ave. Ticket prices are $6.50 for adults, $5 for persons over age 64 and $3.25 for full-time students. Seats may be reserved by calling Palisades Box Office at 822-8814.

This moving and inspiring play chronicles Emily Stilson's life from the time of her stroke through her hospital encounters to her courageous progress with her therapist, Amy. WINGS is the story of a brave and valiant woman, who in her younger years was a daring wing-walker on planes in flight, and her struggle to rejoin the world she loved so much. The play also presents an amazing insight into the frustrations and triumphs experienced by a stroke victim when the mind tries to right what nature has upset.

PALISADES THEATRE COMPANY has received a special grant from the Pine Arts Council of Florida, a division of the Department of State, with the assistance of the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency, in the development of this production for the purpose of increasing community involvement. Many hours of research have gone into the character development, not only by Rita Howell (who portrays the central figure in the play) but by the rest of the cast who portray hospital personnel, therapists and patients. The cast has spent hours in libraries as well as joining doctors on their rounds at various hospitals, spending time with therapists and stroke victims and watching full examinations by neurologists.

Joining Palisades' resident company (Rita Howell, Susan Morgenstern, Julie Nelson and David Poirier) are local actors Noel Maree, Peter Stoner, Bobbie Stoner, Darcy Sweeney and Gibson Way. Guest directing WINGS is Alfred Gingold from New York's Chelsea Theatre. His recent credits include work at The Manhattan Theatre Club, Theatre By The Sea and Playwrights Horizons, as well as receiving a National Endowment for the Arts fellowship to work at The Arena Stage in Washington, D.C. Two years ago he taught at the University of South Florida and presently he is Associate Artistic Director for the Chelsea Theatre.

WILLOWSONG, an original musical production based on Kenneth Grahame's Wind in the Willows will be presented at the University of South Florida, St. Petersburg Campus, on Saturday, Feb. 14, 1981. The program by the USF Readers' Theatre Guild begins at 8 PM in Bayboro Hall, SPE-130. It is free and open to the public.

Raymond Schneider has written the book and lyrics and Tim Freeland the music for the production.

The current musical grew out of their Spring quarter production of a musical version of Wind in the Willows, the classic Kenneth Grahame story, presented by interpretation students in the department of communication, College of Arts and Letters.

The major characters--Toad, Mole, Rat, Badger and the Storyteller are played with verve, with Mark Sami starring as Toad. The characters play out their lives against the elements, such as the river, represented by a creative dance ensemble. Imaginative staging effects add to the drama.

Director Schneider has predicted that the show will be good enough for further touring outside the Tampa Bay area and may have a chance to wind up with a short run "Off Broadway" in New York. The group was invited to New Orleans in December and performed WILLOWSONG in the Civic Auditorium there.

For further information, contact the USF/St. Pete Activities Office, 893-9129.

McGovern, a South Dakota native, has closely observed the American political scene over the past 24 years during which he served two terms in the U.S. House of Representatives and three terms in the U.S. Senate. He also made an unsuccessful bid for the presidency in 1972 and was director of President Kennedy's Food-for-Peace program.

Before entering politics, McGovern was a history professor at Dakota Wesleyan University. He received both master's and doctoral degrees in history from Northwestern University. He is the author of several books, including an autobiography written after his 1972 presidential campaign.

Following his recent defeat in the Senate race, McGovern organized "Americans for Common Sense," a group devoted to monitoring the political activities of right-wing groups and undertaking education and research on national and international issues.

USF PROF FORECASTS RUSSIAN RESPONSE TO STRIKING POLISH WORKERS

--from USF Information Services

No doubt Russian troops would move into Poland if Polish workers don't back down on their demands. That's the opinion of a University of South Florida professor who has been studying the Russian society for twenty years.

Dr. Thomas Dilkes, an associate professor of Russian history, said if the Poles do not manage "to take half a loaf, if they go for broke," and the Soviets see the Communist Party in Poland is losing control, the Russians will enter Poland.

"If they do move in, they probably will do it this month or next," said Dilkes. "It has to do with troop rotation in the Soviet Union and with their being able to send experienced troops to Poland."

Dilkes said the Soviets are "desperately worried" about the Polish Communist Party's inability to control the situation.

Would potential world reaction stop the Russians from entering Poland?

Dilkes said the Russians could claim they came in under the Brezhnev Doctrine which says the Soviet Union has an obligation to protect socialist states when anti-socialist forces threaten from within.

Discussing Afghanistan, Dilkes said the Soviets consider it a very important country, geopolitically, in Asia.

"For almost a year before the Russian troops moved into Afghanistan, the Soviets had construction people there working on projects," Dilkes said Russians were killed by Afghanistan mobs resenting Russia's modernizing role.

The Russians attempted to break up the feudal holdings of the Mullahs, Muslim scriptural teachers, and mandated Muslim women to remove their veils.

Dilkes has lived in Russia at various times and has served as an exchange faculty member at Moscow State University. He recently was invited to present a paper at the Second World Congress for Soviet and East European Studies in West Germany.
