A man of great personal integrity, modesty, and self-respect, Mr. Haney always put the welfare of the students and the good of the campus first. He combined deep personal commitment to service and a degree of professionalism and, whatever the changes and vicissitudes of office, he was invariably sensitive, cooperative, adaptable, and loyal.

Although he seemed to maintain his strict military philosophy to outward appearances, his co-workers saw his inner kindness and his love of nature and all living things. He always had "his" squirrel that he fed at the doorway; he protected a stray mother dog who had puppies under the building, and always stopped to talk to Darby--a cat who had taken up residence near the Student Affairs Offices.
