Oracle Bureau Chief

USF’s student newspaper Oracle has established a St. Petersburg Campus Bureau. It is located in SPB-219 and has flexible hours. Messages may be left at the office or by calling 893-9176. Written communication can be made by dropping a note to the Bureau Chief André Begin via his mail box in COQ-102 or at one of the Oracle boxes in the BAY-Lobby or the COQ-Dining Center.

For coverage of specific events, please allow ample notice, especially if photo coverage is desired. Unfortunately, the Bureau cannot in any way guarantee publication of articles, letters, photos, or even "what’s happening" items as complete editorial control rests with the staff in Tampa. Lack of space and competing events/articles make promises a risky business at best.

Photo prints and negatives are also under direct control of the Tampa Courier headquarters.

It is with mixed emotions that I complete this issue of the Crow’s Nest. After two years of volunteer service as layout artist and typesetter, I will be stepping aside to allow others to complete these tasks. The acquisition of an Apple Macintosh and LaserWriter™ with the necessary software) by the St. Petersburg Campus Student Government will allow the staff of Student Affairs to resume the complete responsibilities for production.

I was introduced to desktop publishing (DTP), using a Macintosh™, by a student completing an independent study project in October of 1986. As a result of my intense desire to learn more about computers and especially the Macintosh, I volunteered to try my hand at DTP using the Crow’s Nest as a guinea pig. Prior to that time, the Crow’s Nest had been produced, as a labor of love, by Susie Tschiderer using a typewriter.

Over the last two years, prior to this campus acquiring its first LaserWriter™ in early spring, I had to borrow time on LaserWriters™ from two sources: Ray’s Computer Center in Clearwater provided me with unlimited access and assistance while learning the how to’s of DTP; and Ron Brower at Gibbs High School provided me with unlimited access to his school’s LaserWriter™ (while assisting him produce camera ready copy for his school). To both of these resources I would like to say thanks!

Profile: Samuel Y. Fustukjian

Sylvia Masters
Special to the Crow’s Nest

Samuel Y. Fustukjian arrived at the USF Bayboro Campus in 1980 to serve as consultant during the construction of the Nelson Poynter Memorial Library. He has been Director of the Library since its completion.

In 1969, after graduating from the American University of Beirut in Lebanon, Fustukjian came to the United States to achieve his doctorate in English. He holds degrees from Syracuse University and the State University of New York at Oswego. He is currently enrolled in a doctoral program in Education at USF.

Fustukjian feels "the library is a resource for the welfare of the community." His experience as head of information and public services at the State University of New York enables him to spread this doctrine through groups which include the Tampa Bay Library Consortium and the Society for Advancement of Poynter Library.

Additionally, Fustukjian thinks of a library as "a bazaar where answers are found." The Poynter "bazaar" is already the largest research library in Pinellas County. Its full-time staff of thirteen and several student assistants provide guidance and access to more than 115,000 volumes, as well as thousands of records, audio and video cassettes, magazines, newspapers, visual aids and up-to-date automation system.

New material, added at the rate of 5,000 items a year, will soon exhaust the library building’s capacity. Expansion plans, which would include audio and video viewing rooms and a language-learning lab, will be implemented when funding is available.

Because "we are here to serve," Sam Fustukjian urges USF students to feel free to come to him and his staff with any question, even if they don’t feel that question falls within their perception of what a library can answer.

Fustukjian is also proud of his Armenian ancestry. He and his wife, Cynthia, a librarian at Northside Christian School, live in St. Petersburg. They have a five-year-old daughter, Ruth, and a son, Ari, who at seven years of age is already an avid, advanced reader.

Where’s Zatl?

Bill Asenjo, Jr
Member, Bayboro Geographic Society

Naturally, as a college student, I like to think that I’m well-informed and aware of the world in which I live. Daily, we’re reminded that our educational system leaves a bit to be desired, with other industrialized countries leaving us in the dust. Our country, in a worldwide survey, was rated a pathetic 39th in literacy. But rather than blame the system, perhaps it’s the values and priorities of our society. That moot point is all the more apparent when you consider the following CBS Affiliates Survey conducted in January, 1987: 58% of high-school seniors tested in Boston could not name the 6 New England states; 45% of high-school seniors tested in Baltimore could not correctly respond to the instruction, “On the attached map shade in the area where the United States is located.”; 40% of high-school seniors in Kansas City could not name three countries in South America.

As appalling as that may be, how do you, as a college student, shape up? In the interest of the upcoming National Geography Awareness Week (Nov. 13-19), I’ve taken it upon myself to submit the following little quiz (calm down, it won’t affect your GPA):

1. What U.S. state borders only one other?
2. What’s the longest river in the world?
3. What country borders Denmark to the south?
4. What country borders the most others?
5. What’s the world’s largest island?
6. What country comes last in alphabetical order?
7. What country can claim Magallanes, the world’s southernmost city?
8. What’s the second-most-spoken language on earth?
9. What country lies directly south of Detroit?
10. What’s the largest country in Europe after the Soviet Union?
11. What body of water borders Saudi Arabia to the east? (hint: it’s been in the news quite a bit lately)
12. How many U.S. states border the Gulf of Mexico?
13. What continent is home to the largest number of countries?

Hurricane Relief Project for Jamaica

A heart-felt thank you to members of the University community who contributed to September’s hurricane relief project for Jamaica.

123 lbs. (62 boxes) of clothes, shoes, food, toys, and licenses were shipped on September 21 and 28.

Funding for the shipping was donated by the Student Account- ing Organization, Circle K Club, Bayboro Geographic Society, the USF St. Pete Lecture Series Committee and other individual contributors.

Additionally, $185.00 was forwarded from private individuals to the Caribbean Resources Development Foundation (CARDEV).

The following comments are taken from a letter by Dr. Philip Sherlock, Executive Vice President of CARDEV to Prof. Cliff Holmes, USF St. Petersburg:

“Your kindness in this time of Jamaica’s great need, your quick response and understanding, as well as your generous gift, are deeply appreciated. You will be glad to know that the people of Jamaica are working hard to put their homes in order and to replant their crops. They really are showing great courage, and this is due in part to the wonderful help they have had from the U.S.A., Canada, the United Kingdom and a number of European governments as well as from neighboring islands such as the Dominican Republic and Trinidad.”

CARDEV sends to you and your colleagues very sincere thanks for helping in both these material and spiritual ways. Please convey this message to all who helped.

Again, thanks!
