Introduction to the Collection

This scrapbook includes a compilation of newspaper clippings from a variety of sources and covers the mid-1930s. Approximately one-half of these clippings focus on stories related to St. Petersburg or Florida more broadly, while the remainder cover events as broad as English royalty to the Second Italo-Ethiopian War (1935-1936). The compiler of the materials in this scrapbook is unknown, though the name “Billy Dean” appears on this document. It is uncertain as to whether this was an actual proper name, or whether it was a nickname or pseudonym.

Jen Runyon, formerly a student at the University of South Florida St. Petersburg, donated this scrapbook and another one that captures the activities for Emil August Nordstrom, a former city engineer, in spring 2013 after acquiring them from a source in the community. There are no access restrictions on this item.

Preservation Note

Nota Bene: Although scrapbooks by their very nature tend to have contents that are brittle, including acidified newspaper clippings, the condition of the physical scrapbook and the contents within are in very poor condition. Copyright restrictions prevent digitization of the clippings within and therefore the contents of the scrapbook cannot be reformatted beyond the provisions allowed under Fair Use. At a minimum, patrons must either wear gloves or consult with the librarian about the best measures to use when examining the contents of this scrapbook.

While preservation measures may slow the physical deterioration of items within this scrapbook, these steps cannot prevent damage from occurring. To prevent further damage to the fragile materials in this scrapbook, avoid exposing them to light for an extended period of time. Please report any tears or other damage so that library staff may take appropriate preservation or conservation measures. Protective gloves should be worn when handling all fragile materials. While no restrictions limit access to this collection, library staff will evaluate photocopying or digitization requests on an individual basis to ensure the long-term preservation of this unique collection. Patrons using this collection must adhere to copyright and fair-use guidelines and provide proper citation of sources appearing in their research.
