ST. PETERSBURG CAMPUS Vol. 12, No. 2
American Paintings of the Sixties and Seventies at the Museum of Fine Arts, St. Petersburg, Florida, from September 28 through November 2, 1980.

American Paintings of the Sixties and Seventies, comprised of forty monumental canvases from the permanent collection of the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York, will be on view from September 28 through November 2, 1980 at the Museum of Fine Arts, 255 Beach Drive North, St. Petersburg, Florida.

Organized around three major themes—the "Real," the "Ideal," and the "Fantastic"—this exhibit illustrates dramatically the creative strength and individuality of American painters working in the last two decades, while at the same time exemplifying common goals shared among them with regard to subject matter and content.

In the "Real" category are familiar everyday images, including Andy Warhol's Green Coca Coca Bottles, Wayne Thiebaud's Pie Counter, Richard Estes' The Candy Store, and William Bailey's Candy Store. Representative of the "Ideal" are non-figurative works such as the monumental geometries of Frank Stella, Robert Irwin, Morris Louis, Agnes Martin and Ellsworth Kelly. The "Fantastic" involves works by lesser known but highly accomplished artists, descendants of the early 20th century Surrealists in their preoccupation with the imagination as the ultimate source for artistic subject matter. Among the fascinating depictions intermingling dream and reality are Joseph Zucker's Merlyn's Lab, Alfonso Ossorio's Sea Present, and Roy DeForest's Wild Horse's Dream.

Part three of a series of traveling loan exhibits generated by the Whitney to show the development of American painting since 1900, The Sixties and Seventies was selected by Mitchell Kahan, Curator of Painting and Sculpture, Montgomery Museum of Fine Arts, Montgomery, Alabama, with the assistance of Patterson Sims, Associate Curator of the Permanent Collection, Whitney Museum. A fully illustrated catalog by Kahan accompanies the exhibition.

Patterson Sims will present an illustrated lecture, "American Painting 1950-1980: The Triumph and its Aftermath", in the Marly room of the Museum of Fine Arts on Sunday, September 28 at 3 PM. The lecture is free of charge and open to the general public. For further information, call the Museum at (813) 896-2667.
Madrigal Christmas Party Coming to USF-Tampa

A seven-year tradition at the University of South Florida will take on a new look this year as the Madrigal Dinner becomes the Madrigal Christmas Party. The parties will be held at 8 PM Dec. 2-7, 12 and 13 and at 4 PM Dec. 7 in the University Center Ballroom.

Renaissance revelry, music and dance will highlight each evening's entertainment. The USF Chamber Singers and the Collegium Musicum, and instrumental consort under the direction of musicologist and music faculty member John Robison, will perform madrigals, Christmas songs and dances from 14th and 15th-century Europe.

Performers will be in period costume and the Collegium will perform on replicas of Renaissance instruments, including recorders, krumm horn, dulcians and lutes.

The party bill of fare will include wassail, wine, cheeses, fruits and sweets in place of the complete dinner formerly served.

Sponsoring the annual event is the department of music, College of Fine Arts. It will be directed by Chris Yoder.

A party format will allow a more informal atmosphere and more audience participation in an extended and more varied program. More guests can be accommodated.

Ticket sales begin Nov. 3 by mail order only. Ticket prices are $10 for ringside tables and $8 for all other seating.

USF Breaks Ground in Fort. Myers Sept. 26!

The University of South Florida will break ground for a $6-million regional campus in Fort Myers during ceremonies beginning at 10 a.m. Sept. 26.

The general public is invited to the groundbreaking on the 55-acre campus site adjacent to Edison Community College in south Lee County.

Those expected to speak at the groundbreaking include USF President John Lott Brown, Edison Community College President David Robinson, and Fort Myers businessman Tommie Howard, a leader in the Fort Myers community effort to locate a university campus in Southwest Florida.

Construction on the $6-million first phase of USF at Fort Myers is expected to begin in early October. The anticipated completion date is March 1982. Architects are Stewart-Richmond Architects Inc. The construction contract has been bid, but not yet awarded.

Phase I will consist of four two-story buildings arranged in a U-shape around a plaza. It is designed to serve 720 students. It will contain 70,000 square feet.

This phase is designed to accommodate expansion to a campus that will ultimately serve 2,300 students. Future buildings will be connected to Phase I structures by support spaces between buildings which will contain stairways, snack bars, rest rooms, elevators, air conditioning equipment, etc. Such support spaces connect the four Phase I structures.

The USF campus has been designed to permit the University and neighboring Edison Community College to share facilities. USF will share the existing Edison library. New USF buildings will house student services, such as admissions, registrar and records, advising, etc., for both institutions.

USF will share Edison’s student activities facilities—cafeteria, student lounge, etc.

USF has offered classes in Fort Myers, using borrowed and leased facilities, since 1974. Currently, bachelor’s degrees are offered in business, education, criminal justice, social science, and nursing. Master’s degrees are offered in elementary education and administration and supervision.
STUDY TRIP TO PERU OFFERED IN DECEMBER

Visit an Indian village in the Amazon jungle. Ride a train through the heart of the ancient Incan culture. Then spend a night high atop the Andes at Machu Picchu.

These activities and more are included in a study trip to Peru Dec. 9-23. The trip is sponsored by the State University System and conducted by Dr. Amy Sparks, associate professor of humanities at the University of South Florida.

Sparks’ tour will focus on the art and architecture of pre-Columbian Peru. Six college credits may be earned while traveling. But there are no academic or language pre-requisites for participants. The trip is open to the public.

Cost will be about $1,500 single, or $1,400 double occupancy. This includes all air and land transportation, hotel accommodations, some meals, all tours, transfers and tips for luggage handling.

All participants must register for six credit hours at the regular university tuition rate of $16.50 per hour. Those not wishing to take an exam or complete a paper may register to "audit" without credit.

Four, three-hour lectures prior to the trip will prepare travelers to tour ancient ruins. Two more lectures follow upon return. Taped lectures are available for off-campus students.

Flying from Tampa to Iquitos, Peru Dec. 9, the group will take a river cruise into the Amazon jungle. They then fly to Lima for an afternoon at the National Archeological Museum of Peru followed by a full day tour of Cajamarquilla and Puruchuco ruins.

The itinerary also includes stops at Trujillo, for visits to Chan Chan ruins, the Huaca del Sol and the Huaca de la Luna; Juliaca and Puno, in the region of Lake Titicaca. There is an all day train ride through the Andes and the heart of the Inca culture to Cuzco. From there the group will take another train trip through the valley of the Urubamba River to Machu Picchu, the "Lost City of the Incas."

After additional excursions to the ruins of Pisac, Sacasuyusman, Kenko and Puca Pucara, a day of rest and shopping in Cuzco is scheduled before tour participants return to Tampa via Iquitos Dec. 23.
