Coffee—More Healthy and Better Flavored, For One-Fourth the Expense of Common.--Coffee, by weight on measure, one-fourth, rye three-fourths. Look them over separately, to remove bad grains; then wash to remove dust, draining off the water for a moment as you take it with the hands, from the washing water, putting directly into the browning skillet, carefully stirring all the time, to brown it evenly. Brown each one separately; then mix evenly, and grind only as used; settling with a beaten egg, seasoning with a little cream and sugar as usual.

And I do sincerely say the flavor is better, and it is one hundred per cent more healthy than all coffee. You may try barley, peas, parsnips, dandelion roots, but none of their flavors are equal to rye. Yet all of them are more or less used for coffee.

Mel Brooks comedy is never better than in THE TWELVE CHAIRS. Brooks himself plays a cameo role in this hilarious comedy-adventure about a desperate search all over Czarist-Russia for a fortune in family jewels hidden in one of twelve chairs. Dom DeLuise plays the rotund village priest. "A complete Joy! Mel Brooks is a major delight in a totally hilarious role. A comedy to warm the heart and leave the ribs aching," Judith Crist, NBC-TV. "Obeys no rules except those governing the lost art of pure comedy...a cast of superlatively clever, led by Ron Moody, the memorable Fagin of 'Oliver'." Bruce Williamson, PlayBoy Magazine.

Valentine's Day
February 14

Poor old Valentine, a third century priest who was clubbed and beheaded on February 14 in the year 270, would certainly be surprised to find himself a lovers' saint. Nobody actually knows why lovers exchange their sentimental greetings on this particular day, but there is one plausible theory: that the Church used the day of St. Valentine's martyrdom in an attempt to Christianize the old Roman Lupercalia, a pagan festival held around the middle of February. Part of the ceremony consisted of putting girls' names in a box and letting the boys draw them out. This, supposedly, paired off the couples for a whole year—until the next Lupercalia.

Following its usual strategy of retaining a pagan ceremony but changing its meaning, the Church substituted saints' names for girls' names. The participant was supposed to model his life during the ensuing year after the life of the saint whose name he drew. However, the old pagan custom gradually worked its way back and by the sixteenth century, the girls had regained possession of the name-box. It was the introduction of inexpensive postage that brought about the kind of participation we now know. Before that time, everything had to be left to the "drawing." But low postal rates made it possible for the poorest lad to bypass the drawing and let his real choice know how he felt about her. And, of course, there was a certain amount of privacy about it, which helped those who were of a shy nature.

Some say there were two saints named Valentine. Some even say there were three. All were martyrs—all are associated with February 14. St. Valentine or perhaps "Saints" Valentine, is patron of engaged couples and all who wish to marry. Legend says that St. Valentine has the power to patch up lovers' quarrels. This is probably the easiest reason, he is invoked against epilepsy, plague, and fainting diseases.

The Community Blood Bank is a non-profit organization that operates on a 100 percent voluntary basis. It supplies the total blood needs for nine major hospitals in the area.

The Blood Bank needs the support of every eligible donor between the ages of 17 and 66. Unless more people become regular donors, the supply will not keep pace with the growing demand for blood. Someday your life may depend on its availability. To assure that blood will be there when you need it, give blood now and encourage others to become voluntary blood donors.

The Community Blood Bank's Family Blood Plan assures the blood needs of your entire family. One donation relieves the burden of finding replacement donors should any member of your family need blood. Protection lasts one full year from the time of enrollment and may be renewed annually with just one donation per year.

The balance between supply, demand, and human life depends on blood donors.

The Community Blood Bank will be on campus on Wednesday, February 16, 1977.
