FRIDAY EVENING FILM SERIES

FEBRUARY 14 FREE
ELVIRA MADIGAN, a legendary Swedish character of the 19th century, has a sad love affair with an army lieutenant who deserted his wife and children to run off with a girl in the circus. At first they are blindly happy and then their fortunes turn. They are rebels with a cause—dreaming of a future in which men "will be allowed to make more than one life for themselves." Theirs is a romantic love doomed from its refusal to be practical.

VALIENNE'S DAY
FEBRUARY 14

Poor old Valentine, a third century priest who was clubbed and beheaded on February 14 in the year 270, would certainly be surprised to find himself a lovers' saint. Nobody actually knows why lovers exchange their sentimental greetings on this particular day, but there is one plausible theory: that the Church used the day of St. Valentine's martyrdom in an attempt to Christianize the old Roman Lupercalia, a pagan festival held around the middle of February. Part of the ceremony consisted of putting girls' names in a box and letting the boys draw them out. This, supposedly, paired off the couples for a whole year until the next Lupercalia.

Following its usual strategy of retaining a pagan ceremony but changing its meaning, the Church substituted saints' names for girls' names. The participant was supposed to model his life during the ensuing year after the life of the saint whose name he drew. However, the old pagan custom gradually worked its way back and by the sixteenth century, the girls had regained possession of the name-box. It was the introduction of inexpensive postage that brought about the kind of St. Valentine's Day we now know. Before that time, everything had to be left to the "drawing." But low postal rates made it possible for the poorest lad to bypass the pagan ceremony and let his real choice know how he felt about her. And, of course, there was a certain amount of privacy about it, which helped those who were of a shy nature.

Some say there were two saints named Valentine—some even say there were three. All were martyrs—all are associated with February 14. St. Valentine, or perhaps "Saints" Valentine, is patron of engaged couples and all who wish to marry. Legend says that St. Valentine has the power to patch up lovers' quarrels. This is probably the easiest assignment ever given to any saint. Also, for some reason, he is invoked against epilepsy, plague, and fainting diseases.
