Russell Means Speaks at USF

By Lisa Wharton
Crow's Nest Editor

Russell Means, American Indian rights activist, spoke at the CAC on Thursday, April 9 as part of the St. Petersburg Lecture Series "Our Indigenous Heritage: A Celebration of American Indian Culture."

Means was in the Tampa Bay area to protest the arrival of the replicas of the Columbus ships, the Nina, Pinta, and Santa Maria. Means also helped to organize the Florida chapter of the American Indian Anti-Defamation Council (AIADC) during his stay.

Means has appeared on the Today Show, Larry King Live and Good Morning America, among others. He is also the founder of the International Treaty Council and co-founder of the American Indian Movement (AIM). In 1988 he vied for the U.S. presidential nomination as a Libertarian Party candidate.

Means, an Oglala Sioux born on the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota, spoke to an audience of over 300 at the CAC. He began his talk by welcoming the audience to the Americas, "the state of the American Indian peoples." Means spoke eloquently of the American Indian way of life. He stressed the importance of the female-male balance and the necessity of preserving the family unit.

Western society could learn much about a healthy family from the American Indian heritage, he believes.

Means highlighted some of the significant contributions the American Indian has made to society. He pointed out that over sixty percent of our food and most of our medicine come from the Indians.

Concerning the Columbus Quincentenary, Means feels that it is a statement by the U.S. and Spain that the American Indian does not exist. His protest of the ships is to make people aware that the American Indian was here before Columbus "discovered" America. "We want Columbus Day to be changed to Ethnic Diversity Day," he says.

In order to change misconceptions, Means feels that education is the key. He says it is imperative that the American Indian be placed in the correct historical context.

Means will make his motion picture debut in the title role of The Last of the Mohicans, which will be released this summer.

The USF St. Petersburg Lecture Series will continue its series on American Indian culture throughout the year.

tory on the USF St. Pete campus, won the 1992 LeRoy Collins Prize for best graduate student essay in Florida History. Schnur’s paper, entitled “Preserving on the Front: Blacks in Florida During WW II,” examines the social, educational, economic, and legal barriers confronting African Americans during the Second World War. He received his award and a $500 prize at the annual meeting of the Florida Historical Society in St. Augustine on May 8.

Schnur has won prizes from the Florida Historical Society on two previous occasions. In 1988, he earned the President’s Prize for best undergraduate essay in Florida History with a paper that evaluated Governor LeRoy Collins’ response to the interposition crisis in the mid-1950s. Last year, Schnur won the 1991 LeRoy Collins Prize for his analysis of the exploits of the Florida Legislative Investigation Committee (commonly known as the Johns Committee) that used McCarthyite tactics during the 1950s and 1960s.

While any college student in the nation can submit papers for the LeRoy Collins graduate award and the undergraduate Brevard award (formerly the President’s Prize), students at USF have won awards from the Florida Historical Society since its inception, a record that no other university can match. In 1991 and 1992, USF students won both the undergraduate and graduate prizes. A majority of USF’s winners consider St. Pete their home campus. The honors attract the interest of USF historians, who in their research demonstrate the academic calibre of the University and its history program.

Parking patroller Ben Taber has worked at USF for 18 months now. He also works at the St. Petersburg Times as a paste-up artist and as a part-time health care worker at local hospitals on weekends. He attended St. Petersburg High School, SPIC, and USF Tampa. His studies have included music composition and chemistry education. Prior to coming to our campus, he worked at Honeywell, and also in retail management at Walgreen’s.

Currently, Ben is the Senior Parking Patroller on the St. Petersburg Campus. The duties he enjoys the most in the Parking Services Department are motorist assistance chores, such as battery jumps, and helping people get into their locked cars—when keys are forgotten inside. Ben is also responsible for the upkeep and maintenance of the Parking Service vehicle, checking emergency phones on campus, assisting with de­­cal sales, issuing visitor permits, and researching vehicle tag registrations.

Ben attends St. Peter’s Episcopal Church in downtown St. Petersburg, is single, and his leisure pursuits include the beach, golf, bowling, tennis, and playing the piano.

If you see Ben on campus, always remember that he can help you when your battery is dead, or when you just want some local parking information. Please stop and chat—music and golf might just be your cup of tea.

Steve Bearden convened his first meeting as Student Government President on Thursday, May 28.

In the meeting, Bearden offered his goals for SG during the summer and fall semesters. These included: maintaining the Legal Aid Program; revising the SG Constitution; improving the handicap access on campus; developing an extended study center; establishing a permanent booth in the Suncoast Dome and other university-wide fundraising.

Baseball fans at USF can thank Bob Miller, chairperson of SG’s campus and community relations committee, for a special rate at local minor league baseball games.

Students, staff and faculty can now attend St. Petersburg Cardinals, Dunedin Blue Jays and the Clearwater Phillies minor league baseball home games for FREE, with a valid USF identification card.

This offer lasts throughout the minor league season. Schedules for the Cardinals and the Blue Jays can be picked up in the Activities Office in the CAC.

AIDS is not just a white homosexual male disease. And just as AIDS affects us all, not everyone is at risk. Even those people who are at risk can protect themselves if they take reasonable precautions. Being safe from AIDS is up to you. It's your responsibility to protect yourself and those you love. It starts with knowing the three ways people get AIDS: by having sex with someone who has been infected with the AIDS virus; by using a needle or syringe that has been used by someone infected with the AIDS virus; and by being born to a woman who has been infected with the AIDS virus.

What is AIDS?

AIDS stands for acquired immunodeficiency syndrome. It is not as complicated as it sounds, but it is deadly. AIDS is a disease caused by a virus that destroys the body's ability to fight off illness.

The AIDS virus alone does not kill, but it makes it so that your body is unable to fight off other diseases such as pneumonia or cancer. And those are the types of illnesses that can kill.

One of the most frightening facts about AIDS is that once you get it, you can carry it around for years without knowing it. And you have it forever. Right now, there is no known cure for AIDS, and no vaccine that prevents it. But fortunately, the AIDS virus is hard to catch and that's what makes it preventable.

The only way you can tell if you've been exposed to the AIDS virus is by having a blood test. The test looks for changes in your blood caused by the presence of the virus. If you test negative, that doesn't mean you can't get AIDS, it just means that you didn't have it when you were tested. If you test positive, it means you've probably been infected.

You can have the HIV virus without having AIDS, or without ever appearing or feeling ill. And you can transmit the virus to others. If you are worried that you may have been infected, find out about the test by calling your local HRS or Student Health Services on the Tampa Campus at 974-4936.

How Can You Tell If You Have The AIDS Virus?

First of all, learn as much as you can about AIDS. Second, be frank. AIDS kills, so the thing you don't want to do is put yourself at risk. If you have oral, anal, or vaginal sex with an infected person, chances are you will become infected too. That means man to woman, woman to man, man to woman, all of it! And because there is no cure, we all must work at preventing its spread.

Right now, the most effective way to prevent AIDS besides not having sex is to use a condom.

Learn to use it properly. Your life may depend on it.

"Hoop Scoop"
Basketball Banter with Just a Touch of Blarney!

By Deadeye Dennis Hans

The King is dead. Long live the King. Ever since the retirement of Al Mells, St. Pete hoop fans have been wondering who would come to rule the CAC's daytime basketball league. The wondering is over. The imposing figure of Raymond Arsenault has ascended to the throne.

Some of you may know him as a mild-mannered professor of history, but to many of us he's a monster; a burly forward wreaking havoc in the middle who can just as easily step outside and destroy opponents with his feathery touch. "He's like Charles Barkley, but without the attitude," commented one admirer.

Basketball is not the only talent in the Arsenault arsenal. A gifted actor, he can be seen in the role of "Slim," the fellow with the two-inch vertical leap, in the latest Blacktop Shoes commercial.

There were but two ticks left on the clock in the April 29 noontime CAC game. Though the final outcome was no longer in doubt, you could cut the tension with a knife. All eyes were on the man from USGS. The play was called, the picks were set, and in one fluid motion Guy Gelfenbaum caught the inbounds pass, turned and fired. The ball swished through the net, and Guy broke down in tears. The basket gave him 44 points easily step outside and destroy opponents with his feathery touch.

Dedication and hard work have paid off in a big way for the St. Pete Sirens, our campus's women basketball team. They went 7-2 on their recent European tour, including Victory for points in a single game by a man with a red beard was set back in 1966 by Jack for the game—and a new CAC scoring record for a man with a red beard.
