The Museum of Fine Arts is now presenting a series of films to be shown to the public on "Pioneers of Modern Painting". The third film of the series will be shown this Sunday at 3:00 pm in the North Wing of the museum. All but the last film will be shown at the same time. The final film will be shown at 7:00 pm on May 6.

The films were written and narrated by Kenneth Clark and are being distributed by the Nat'l Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. Each film will concentrate on a different artist including Edouard Manet, Paul Cezanne, Georges Seurat, Henri Rousseau, and Edvard Munch.

Lord Clark had a long and distinguished career in Art, serving as a director of the National Gallery of London, Slade Professor of Fine Arts, Oxford University, and chairman of the Arts Council of Great Britain. He is the author of numerous books. He is also the recipient of the Nat'l Gallery of Art's Medal for distinguished service to education in art for the Civilization series.

Loretta must confess that she has gained several lbs. from that delicious Spaghetti Dinner Friday. Too bad for all those who missed it.

Miles: How was it that you managed to finagle three separate prizes Friday night? I could use someone like you to figure out my income tax form.

Loretta wonders why it is that Joan is never able to plan her weekend activities more than a few minutes in advance.

Dear Ray, Sir, Great One, All Powerful,

Noticed that your name, picture, and so-called athletic accomplishments have been saturating the media. You have fooled everyone but a few who still know you for what you are——
