A ROAD TO REASON AND REALITY

Submitted by T. L. Munson, a Political Science Major.

Have we not seen much more of life than we had expected to see with its pressures forced upon us? Because of these pressures, have we not seen life and man as God and man have made the two?

Since God being perfect, and man imperfect, there exists the two strongest forces in life—Good and Evil.

Or should we say, for every positive force there exists an opposite? In realizing this, we all in some little way, should decide for ourselves; what life really is, what life means to us personally, and what is out there for us.

Opportunities, we all have had, and some have taken them, because they were there to be taken.

Now that we have seen a part of what was to be, we should follow our destinies, which at this stage in our lives, urges us to settle ourselves, and to seek out new frontiers of thought, which will continue our growth, toward our real purpose in life, which is the ultimate, through God’s own plan.

Therefore, should we not agree whole-heartedly, that each should follow their own personal urge, in obtaining their real purpose in life? For it is felt, that this urge must be and will be his alone. If it were not so, would our minds and bodies not be within a different realm, or pattern of thought and existence? Would our lives to this point not be in reverse to what they actually are, or to what they have made us and are leading us to be?

MAY 4

The Joad family, pushed off their ancestral tenant farm by the Dust Bowl and mechanized agriculture in the early '30s, leaves Oklahoma to search for work in California. They discover they are unwanted because of thousands like them who are over-running California and willing to work for starvation wages. When laborers band together to demand fair treatment, they are run out of town. With an epic majesty that never falters, the film depicts poverty, injustice, despair, disillusionment and hardship in a manner which makes this film a classic in our time. Adapted from John Steinbeck's Pulitzer prizewinning novel and directed by John Ford.

Film begins promptly at 8 p.m. in the USFSP Auditorium. It is FREE to all College students, faculty, and staff members and their guests. Please present I.D.

Would our lives to this point not be in reverse to what they actually are, or to what they have made us and are leading us to be?

Let us ask ourselves these questions. Let us think and pray with all earnestness. Though through time we will become different, for thought is the beginning of wisdom and understanding.

Far too few think, but only act; too few act, but only wish and dream. For to Think and Seek is to act and find that dream, which was planted in us by God, but is to be nourished by each of us, to either Grow or Die.

To Wish is to Dream, but to act upon it is the beginning of Reality.

TRUE POSSESSOR OF TRUE GRIT

While at the tender age of six years old, I found the true meaning of True Grit. Watching my older brother cut advertisements out of a farming book, fixing his name on the dotted line, and sending them to the proper address, he would receive colorful books and pictures for his efforts. Now up until that point, I had never received any mail at all. Being quick like I am, I found an old farming magazine and fixed my name on the dotted line and mailed it to the proper address.

Only four days passed before it got results. We were all at the dinner table when the doorbell rang. Mom answered and quickly asked for assistance from Dad. There, on our driveway, was a gigantic corn husking machine worth at least $10,000. As we all looked at each other in panic and amazement, the 6'2" driver asked for Mr. Craig Rubright, the one who had asked for the demonstration of the machine. He looked hot, tired, and BIG. It seems my little coupon wasn't for a book or a picture, but a demonstration for this corn husking machine.

Well, for a six year old to tell a hot, tired, BIG man who drove fifty miles on a corn husker that he was indeed Mr. Craig Rubright, takes True Grit.

P.S. I don't think I saw TV for two months after this trick. I have never ever sent off for free material again.
