Street Brings His Management Skills to USF St. Petersburg’s College of Business

June 20, 2003 - St. Petersburg, Fla.

Dr. Marc Street will join the faculty of USF St. Petersburg as an assistant professor of management. Street received his bachelor’s degree in economics and sociology from the University of Maryland. He earned his master’s degree from the University of Baltimore and his doctorate from Florida State University, both in business administration.

Street’s current research projects include Construction and Validation of a scale measuring the moral intensity construction, EQ vs. IQ: Which is a stronger predictor of ethical behavior? and The “trolley car” dilemma as a barometer of moral intensity. Among his publications are Industrial Relations: The Conflict Assumption Revisited and An Examination of Co-Author Behaviors in the Manuscript Review Process.

Street comes to USF St. Petersburg from the University of Tulsa where he taught courses in behavior sciences in administration, management, human resource management, international management and corporate social responsibility. He has also taught at the University of Florida and the Institute for International Business Education in Zelenograd, Russia.
