Model Student Of The Year

Glen Gilkey congratulates Ronald Cogman. Ronald Cogman is a high school student, he focused on most of the things a person his age would be his prom date, what college he should attend and what would be his graduation GPA. The one thing that set this 1996 Armwood High School honor graduate apart from most other teens, was his dedication at home with his mother who, he says, is in her final days. Ronald is an only child, raised by a single mother and is a role model for many young people who may think they can't make it.

School Choice Next Major Civil Rights hurdle

The Center for New Black Leadership (CNBL) has joined other advocacy organizations to launch an innovative effort to win low-income parents in Washington, DC the right to choose what school their children attend. "This is a civil rights issue," commented CNBL president Gerald Reynolds. "When a public school fails to provide a quality education, it is simply not fair for the government to force parents to send their children to those schools for a period of time. We believe that we can overcome these problems through a comprehensive approach to school choice.

A Good Steward

"And the Lord said, Who can trustful and wise steward has he that will make ready over his house, and at an hour when he is not expected? Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing. Of a truth, I say unto thee, he will make him ruler over his houses." Then he said, unto the first, 'How much owest thou my lord?' And he said, 'A hundred talents.' He said, 'Take the same, and be thy stewardship.' Then he said unto the second, 'And how much owest thou unto my lord?' And he said, 'Twenty talents.' He said, 'Thou also shalt rule over ten houses.' Then he said unto the third, 'And how much owest thou unto my lord?' And he said, 'Five talents.' He said, ' Thou also shalt rule over five houses.' Then he said unto those that had one talent, 'Fear thy lord, and render thee the money which is due unto him at the season appointed.' Then his lord said unto him, 'Thou hast been faithful in a very little; have thou care of ten talents.' So he went and did as he was commanded. Then a certain employer of a family bond with two young men, I wanted to give the task special care in the wedding so they would know the time, how important they were to him and Tony, explains the 20-year-old Pearland, CA resident. "I didn't want them to feel the way so many children do or emotional during a remarriage situation: like extra baggage, something that interferes with the relationship of the man and the woman." Cavanaugh and her fiancé were confronted with a problem that will be experienced by most of the nearly one million single parents who will marry in the US this year. What can be done to reassure fears of young children who feel, on a conscious or unconscious level, that their secure place in the family is threatened by the special ceremony? Each child is given a gold or silver medal with three interlocking circles, a symbol that represents family love to symbolize a solution in the form of a family medal and emotionally satisfying way. Exploring So. Carolina

It was a turbulent time in the Deep South. African Americans were marching for their civil rights in cities with familiar names like Selma, Birmingham and Montgomery. Dr. Martin Luther King's efforts to win equal voting rights faced resistance and violence. By the 1960s, But to find the genesis of many of these marches requires a trip to a tiny island off the South Carolina coast.

St. Helena, just off of Beaufort, is home to the Penn Center, the nation's oldest African American community college. It's also a center for the preservation of African American history.

The history of African Americans in South Carolina is rich and diverse as the state itself and spans hundreds of years. Today, the state is seeking new ways to market that diversity and attract more and more African Americans to visit South Carolina in 1997. In the next three years, the state expects to get about 1.5 million more visitors than it did in 1996. If you know the benefits of seeing both the bright and dark sides of history, then you'll love what Saul Jennings, director of the state department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism, has to say. "We've got great beaches, challenging golf courses, historic sites and beautiful scenery."

The local city planner on any visit to South Carolina is the historic port city of Charleston. Many African Americans once found their way to this charming southern city along the Atlantic Ocean. Some estimates place more than 40% of the half million slaves brought to North America between 1799 and 1865 through Charleston. The state of Virginia alone imported more than a million slaves through Charleston during the 1807-1907 period. The Gullah influence can be seen on the island and DeSoto Park was the site of an old AfricanAmerican burial ground. Small's Monument, a memorial dedicated to African-Americans and Confederate soldiers and sailors who served in the Civil War, is located in the city market, on King Street. It contains a large collection of African American memorabilia. The Charleston Museum, the Avery Center, the Aiken-Rhett House and the Drayton Hall Plantation are just a few of the many interesting sites to visit.

Wishing you a wonderful trip to South Carolina. It has something for everyone.

THE RELATIONSHIP PEOPLE

You can see, experi- ence and know" says Dr. W. Martin Dubose, director of the Avery Center. The center is in a small building but also helps preserve the history of the low country and the sea islands.

Drummond also has all the amenities that can make a visit a dream vacation. It has a whole slew of intemate bed and breakfast inns, fine hotels, pottery museums, white sandy beaches and outstanding golf courses. It also has a collection of upscale shops and boutiques where you can while away the hours and escape the summer heat. Any Charleston trip should also include a trip to Middleton Place and Magnolia Plantation and Gardens. Middleton is the oldest, largest and most popular garden in the US and home to Eulan Irvin's. A gathering place for food inside. Magnolia is one of the most beautiful and informative gardens in the world and contains a slave cemetery.

Many visitors leave Charleston and drive south for an hour toward the coastal town of Beaufort. Beaufort's picturesque community has a popular film location for commercials, in a waterfront is a collection of cozy restaurants and off-set shops that attract old and young alike. Some visitors come and see the houses of Smola Plantation. Smola, connected to African-American slaves and a Confederate ship and piloted the steamer to freedom. In later years, Smola became a storehouse and was elected at age 36 to Congress.

Hilton Head Island and Duneblake Island are nearby. Hilton Head is one of the most popular tourist resorts in the country and a spectator's paradise for golf and tennis. Duneblake is accessible from the bay and has a beach and oceanfront property. The Gullah influence can be seen on the island and DeSoto Park was the site of an old AfricanAmerican burial ground. Class of '57 Holds 40th Reunion

ST. PETERSBURG - Class of '57 held its annual reunion on August 1st at the Days Inn Mar-Tel's Banquet Room.

The event was hosted by Richard Paterson, who greeted attendees and provided a brief history of the class.

In the evening, the class held a formal dinner at the nearby restaurant.

The next day, the group gathered at the Bartlett Park neighborhood for a picnic and outdoor activities.

The reunion provided an opportunity for classmates to catch up and reminisce about their shared experiences from 1957.

The following tips are important:

1. Stay indoors.
2. Turn off all electrical appliances and appliances that require batteries.
4. Do not touch anything metal.
5. Do not use a telephone.
