Mixed Race Classifications: Are We Forgetting Our History?

by Oscar Eason Jr.

Under mounting pressure from emerging multi-ethnic groups to change existing racial categories for the US Census in the year 2000, President Clinton created a task force that recommended Americans be allowed to classify themselves by checking off multiple racial categories. Two thirds of all African Americans can mark at least two of these categories, according to one estimate. Thirty federal agencies formed the interagency committee that recommended Americans be allowed to classify themselves by checking off multiple racial categories. Mixed race or multiple racial checkoffs will reinforce the importance of good self-identification. Education, like a westing, as long as it is kept in a small community is an important asset, if placed in a forest or a field, it will grow into a tree. Education affects people in the same way. A good education will make them want to achieve and aspire. Please see pg. 19.

So why don't we do it? Well, the only reason I can think of is that we neglect the problem. The problem is America's education system. Billions of dollars are spent each year to educate our children, yet the results are not what we would like them to be. Many children are not learning what they need to in order to succeed in life. The problem is not going to go away by itself. We need to take action and fix the problem.

Youth Project

by Diane Speight

ST. PETERSBURG — “Children want to feel useful. They need to find their place and role in society and in the community. They need that feeling of working something, something to contribute to society and society needs them to contribute. Service is where we learn to deal with problems in the world. It opens our eyes to the fact that individuals can make a difference.” (Youth Service America, 1991)

Many projects into community could not be done without the help of volunteers. There would certainly be no way the youth of New Community would be able to develop their first community service project without the help of the community and groups like the Positive Black Men club. The group has joined in partnership to help in the completion of New Community’s Youth in Business Reinvigoration grant. The grant was awarded for the purpose of enhancing the community by helping to develop the Internal Fantasy, a Parent and Child Workbook. The group under the direction of Andre Simmons, club president, says they are willing to do anything in their power to help make a difference in the community.

The Christmas Toy Shop, Head Start, Boys & Girls Clubs, also have made donations to benefit victims, help make children feel safe and warm in emergency situations and provided transportation for the elderly and other types of services. We are proud to be a part of the youth project to beautify the Ferrone A. Ponder Courtyard of our right here in our own neighborhood.

The youth began in August of this year. The grant required that they build partnerships with other community groups for additional resources, as well as recruit their own volunteers. In addition to the Positive Black Men, they will have volunteers from Clen Burnell Street Project, Menor’s Chapel, St. Mark and Bell Glades’ St. Petersburg and assisted program group and other family and friends of council members. However, the group could use more help.

“We are very proud of our kids,” says council member Verdina Robinson. Youth giving service is a unique and positive learning experience which offers a powerful way to fulfill education’s most essential mission to enable students to live lives of dignity and purpose. Pre-college youth council members are Y-Drin Al- ysha Carter, Sharmain Cooper, Alysa Flanagan, Nikki Gass, Erica Holder, Mychelle James, Khiana Mc- Ra, Khalea Wray, Torin Simms, Taeanna Spur- man, Dominique Spears, Dominique Taylor, Andray Thomas, Shantel Yune, Nicki Williams, Deborah Waddell, Danielle Williams, Enna Winkler, Danyel and Brittney Dennis.

If you can help part-time, please send a letter or perhaps serve referees to keep the club going.

The group also built partnerships with the community council building.

The club is composed of a small group of friends, who noticed that a need for positive role models and action in the community. After discussing all the great that they could do to make a better life in the community, they put their good ideas into motion, as well as reach out to get a good name, Positive Black Men. Andru Simmons, club president, says they are willing to do anything in their power to help make a difference in this community.

We have donated to numerous charitable organizations in the community, including:

- criminal events,
- crafts,
- library visits,
- renovating, and
- community building activities.

On weekly field trips, they visited Florida sites, including Miami’s Grand Prix, the Florida Aquarium, Beach Centers and Walt Disney. They also visited malls at two local nursing homes and enjoyed a bicycle radio at the center.

The summer journalism program is just one of the many rich and varied programs sponsored by the city of St. Petersburg and the Ferrone Davis Center, available and cry successfully facilitated by the St. Peters­ burg Department of Leisure Services. The center offers recreation programs, GED classes, a tripe, special events, various social ser­ vices and after-school care programs.

ST. PETERSBURG - If you’ve been dreaming of buying a home for your family you must have wondered how to get answers at the free HOPE Expo on Saturdays, Aug. 25, 29, and Sept. 2 in USF-Sapelo campus, Campus Activity Center, 140th Avenue S, St. Petersburg.

Journals were the theme for this year’s summer experience at the Davis Center, 1111 18th Avenue S. Beginning in June, 45 students ages 8-12 participated in the 6-week daily camp program that concluded last week.

Under the direction of enthusiastic camp coordinators, specialist Wan­ do Mitchell, participants wrote articles and printed a booklet that included short biographical articles of all of the students in the program.

Experts on the class invited the St. Petersburg Times and the Pen­ sator Insti­ tute for Media Studies. During these writing workshops, 10 senior editors and writers from the Times and two top staff members from the Poynter Institute volunteered to teach the fundamentals of news writing to camp participants. Some of the teachers included Times columnist Bill Maxwell and the Poynter Institute’s director Dr. Karen E. Brown.

In addition to the emphasis on writing, the students en­ joyed arts and crafts, library visits, swimming, chess and other community building activities. On weekly field trips, they visited Florida sites, including Miami’s Grand Prix, the Florida Aquarium, Beach Centers and Walt Disney. They also visited malls at two local nursing homes and enjoyed a bicycle radio at the center.

The summer journalism program is just one of the many rich and varied programs sponsored by the city of St. Petersburg and the Ferrone Davis Center, available and cry successfully facilitated by the St. Peters­ burg Department of Leisure Services. The center offers recreation programs, GED classes, a tripe, special events, various social ser­ vices and after-school care programs.

Are We Starving Our Brains?

As we sit down to eat a meal, we may be neglecting a very important part of our daily lives. Food. However, we tend to be so busy with our day-to-day activities that we don't take the time to properly prepare and eat our meals. This can affect our health and overall well-being.

In this article, we will discuss the importance of eating a healthy and balanced diet, as well as some tips on how to make healthier food choices. We will also explore the effects of poor eating habits on our brains and how they can impact our cognitive function.

First, let's talk about the importance of eating a healthy diet. A balanced diet should consist of a variety of fruits, vegetables, whole grains, lean proteins, and healthy fats. These foods provide the necessary nutrients that our bodies need to function properly. For example, fruits and vegetables are rich in vitamins and minerals, while whole grains provide complex carbohydrates that give us energy.

Eating a healthy diet can also improve our cognitive function. Studies have shown that a diet rich in fruits, vegetables, and whole grains can improve memory, attention, and mood. In contrast, a diet low in these nutrients can lead to decreased cognitive function.

Now, let's talk about the effects of poor eating habits on our brains. Poor eating habits can lead to an increased risk of developing conditions such as depression, anxiety, and ADD/ADHD. These conditions can negatively impact our ability to concentrate, learn, and remember information.

Another negative impact of poor eating habits is that it can increase the risk of developing chronic conditions such as heart disease, diabetes, and cancer. These conditions can further affect our cognitive function and overall health.

So, how can we improve our eating habits? First, we need to make sure that we are eating a balanced diet. This means including a variety of fruits, vegetables, whole grains, lean proteins, and healthy fats. We should also try to limit our intake of processed foods, sugary drinks, and unhealthy fats.

Second, we need to make sure that we are eating our meals slowly and mindfully. This can help us to better control our portion sizes and avoid overeating.

Finally, we need to make sure that we are getting enough sleep. Sleep is crucial for our cognitive function, and it can affect our ability to concentrate, learn, and remember information.

In conclusion, we need to pay attention to what we are putting into our bodies. A healthy and balanced diet can improve our cognitive function and overall health. Let's make a commitment to eat healthier and take care of our brains.

Blake High School Volunteers Plant Trees

On Saturday, August 9, a tree planting marathon began at Blake High School, 1701 North Blvd. The country’s first magnet high school for performing arts, Blake is scheduled to open for students on August 21.

Thanks to the following agencies, organizations, people and volunteers, hundreds of trees were planted on the school campus:

Mayor’s Beautification Committee, Tampa Parks Department, Hillsborough County public schools, For­man Motor Cars, Genesis Group, Black Alumni Asso­ciation, HBC Contractors, Masonry Builders, Inc., TECO, Hill Ward & Reis­dewen, Tampa Tribune, Tom and Kay Rankin and Sykes Enterprises, Inc.

Beth Shields, Hillsborough County Schools Deputy Superintendent (L) and Dave Best, Principal of Blake High, worked together on the school’s successful tree planting program.

Dr. Earl Lennard, Hillsborough County Public Schools Superintendent (L) and Blake Alumni members plant trees.

Dear Reader,

The home-canning was great! But we missed you terribly. Imagine me a housewife! But I really started to feel “at home” the moment I placed a basket of fresh Purvis fruit on the foyer table. Just like Mom used to do.

I hope you can make it one very soon. You can have all the peaches you want!

Your letter was:

At Publix, you’ll find a wide variety of your favorite fruit — peaches, plums, nectarines. All tree-ripened. That means, the longer it’s left on the tree, the more time it has to collect natural sugars. And that assures better-tasting fruit for your table. So, let our fresh fruit add that extra bit of sweetness to the joy of being “at home.” Because in all great meals the main ingredient is Publix.

Where shopping is a pleasure.
by Elder Martin Ratney

A new day, exciting! God is with us! History was made! Our purpose was to receive a tutorial program to assist the children who will need the services.

Program For At-Risk Teens Proves A Success

ST. PETERSBURG — The four keys to success are planning, preparation, persistence, and doing the right thing without waiting for the right decision. When the right decision comes, you must work hard and really want it.

FeaDell was not replacing the complexion of math to her normal group of middle schoolers in Tampa, Florida. She was starting her career with a new group of single mothers at the Resource Center for Women in the East Davis Center at 1111 Avenue N.

Last Tuesday this Center Day for the several participants in a class provided by the BCW. And for several hours the women and the professionals were gathered together under one premise: learning the ropes of the job field from the people who are actually doing the job.

The general of professionals ranged from educators, corrected office, and some who were entrepreneurs, firefighters, paramedics and LPNs.

I wanted to show the women in the group that many of the women in the center and all in the area to see the opportunities they face in their different fields of employment," said Linda Harmon-Sherman, neighborhood program coordinator for the BCW. "It all then the same thing for the classes all the time, but I think it is a good idea for there to be a first hand.

Community Day was one of the many programs that are available to help women in the Hispanic and Pacifico through the Resource Center for Women.

"We offer a variety of programs to help women in the community. And it does," Sherman said. "But the future of the program is reliant on the fact that we continue to build a gap between when women leave the center and when they enter the working world. And we remain open to all women."

For more information, call Linda Harmon-Sherman at (813) 1-1110.
