Goodbye to All That! Student Suite

The Time
The Summer of 2004

The Place
Addison Ashland’s 6th/7th grade split classroom in the Chicago Public Schools

The Occasion
Four narrative interviews shared by Addison Ashland to discuss her teaching and her students

The Script
All words spoken by the actors who play Addison Ashland and her students come from verbatim transcriptions of four narrative interviews shared by an accomplished classroom teacher in the Chicago Public Schools. Thousands of words have been cut from this material, but no words have been added. Every word in the script is uttered in the original order it was voiced during the interviews.

Description of the Research to Be Conducted at the UCEA

This performance at UCEA of “Goodbye to All That!” is a public forum, and recordings will be taken of all major events along with still-photos, notes, and observations. These records are public documents and these data will be used to understand performers’ and audience members’ response to the show.

Participation in this public event implies consent to participate in data collection to inquire into the reception of the work. Data collected will be analyzed, coded, and interpreted by members of the research-team and their students over an extended time period. Findings will be disseminated in reports, articles, and through arts-based methods. Photos of performers, research-team members, and audience members may be published and these photos may be shared on web pages managed by the research-team and other parties. Performers will be identified by name. Audience members will not be identified by name in these products without their explicit consent.

During the second half of a performance, all members of the audience will be asked to participate in focus groups to discuss the show, and some members will be recruited for groups lead by members of the research-team. Discussion in the recruited groups will be recorded. Discussion in the other groups will not be recorded. Audience members may leave the performance or the focus groups at anytime.

If you have any questions about this study, you can contact the principal investigator, Dr. Charles Vanover at vanover@mail.usf.edu.

This work was supported, in part, by the University of South Florida Research & Innovation Internal Awards Program under Grant No 0077505.

Excerpt from “Goodbye to All That!”

In this excerpt, Addison Ashland describes a conversation with one of her students. Liana had failed her CPS high stakes exam and would be required to repeat 6th grade unless she passed the retake after attending summer school. All words spoken by ADDISON and LIANA are taken from verbatim transcripts of Addison’s interviews. Words have been delated from the text but none have been added or re-arranged.

LIANA: But Ms. Ashland, I really worked hard.
ADDISON: ‘It’s not based on effort and I am so sorry.’
   I tried to explain it to her,
   ‘It’s not fair. This shouldn’t be what they look at and say, “Okay, your scores aren’t high enough. You’re going to have to repeat.” If you were going to have me again, I could hook you up. I wouldn’t make you do everything all over again, I’d set you up with new math and new history and new science.’
   But she won’t have me again, especially if I’m not there, for sure.
LIANA: Well what am I going to do?
ADDISON: ‘You are going to count on yourself and get yourself through it and get your test score up.’
   But it’s so not fair that this person who worked really hard, who can read, and oh boy, she just really (4 SECOND PAUSE) But, a stranger in the room with them makes them feel more uncomfortable, and she’s like,
LIANA: “You know, you couldn’t test us. We couldn’t see you that day.”
ADDISON: ‘Liana, what can I do?’
